

Global Studies

Introduction

An individualized major in Global Studies centers on international issues such as: peace, conflict, and security; economic development; environmental change; or comparative cultures. It is an interdisciplinary major that can include courses from a wide range of disciplines, including political science, history, economics, anthropology, literature, and languages. It should provide you with a solid foundation for graduate studies or a profession with international scope.

Required Courses

Your individualized major plan of study will consist of at least 36 credits of 2000-level or higher courses, 18 of which must be from the college granting your degree, and must include the following:

Research Methods Course. Choose one from an academic department that is integral to your major. Examples include: HIST 2100, POLS 2072Q, ECON 2311, or SOCI 3201.

Capstone. UNIV 4600W Capstone Course, UNIV 4697W Senior Thesis, or an approved alternative.

Writing Intensive Course. A writing intensive course that is relevant to the major theme. This will normally be designated “W” in the course catalog and is in addition to the capstone.

Essential Elements

Your major should contain the following elements:

Thematic Focus (12 or more credits). Coursework with a well-defined, coherent thematic focus such as: peace, conflict, and security; economic development; environmental change; or comparative cultures.

Regional Grouping (9 or more credits). Coursework in a region such as the Middle East, East Asia, Latin America, or Europe.

Education Abroad. A semester abroad in a program relevant to your thematic or regional focus. Relevant upper-level courses taken abroad may be part of the thematic focus or the regional grouping. Under exceptional circumstances, shorter programs or alternative experiences will be considered.

Introductory Courses

We recommend that you take at least one of the following courses to get an introduction to global studies:

- POLS 1402 Intro to International Relations
- SOCI 1701 Society in Global Perspective
- GEOG 2000 Globalization
- NRE 2600 Global Sustainable Natural Resources
- WGSS 2124 Gender and Globalization

Designing a Thematic Focus

One of the most important aspects of creating a major in Global Studies is designing the thematic focus. It is critical that at least twelve credits of your plan of study be directly relevant to the theme. If you are using one of the themes mentioned above, a great resource is the Global Studies suggested course list, which is sortable by theme, on the IISP website. Otherwise, you will need to carefully search the catalog for courses related to your theme.

Important Note! If you are interested in Human Rights, you should pursue it as a double major or a minor, not as a thematic focus for Global Studies.

Below are a few examples of themes with related courses. Please note that these are just examples! Your plan should be unique to you.
